

Copyright, Disclaimer and Credits for the Kansas Collection Online at KCKPL

Copyright

Kansas City, Kansas Public Library (KCKPL) owns the copyright to this website and source files. The digital image files and associated text are the property of KCKPL or of other corporate and private entities. KCKPL made documents available for non-commercial educational or personal use only.

You must obtain written permission from KCKPL or the appropriate third party if you wish to make copies or distribute files from this website. Permission is granted under Fair Use, if (1) permission and copyright notices appear in all reproductions and (2) no documents from this site are modified. For permission to use digital images not owned by KCKPL, requestors should contact the copyright owner directly.

Whenever possible this site provides information about the copyright of its documents.

Our organization made a good faith effort to comply with U.S. copyright law. Accordingly, any copyright material used here is (a) exclusively for educational purposes and not for commercial gain; and (b) used in limited amounts in comparison to the published source.

If there are any objections that material placed here does not conform to the "fair use" provisions outlined, contact the Kansas City Kansas Public Library and material will be removed immediately pending resolution of the issue.

By accessing and using the materials on this site, we deem that you, the user, have consented to the terms above.

Disclaimer

KCKPL established and maintains this site as a service to students, researchers and the public. The materials in the Website are only representative of the holdings in the Kansas Collection, and are intended to supplement other historical materials at the library. KCKPL makes no guarantee, implicit or otherwise about access to the online collection or about the accuracy of any of the content.

The exhibits displayed are courtesy of private individuals or organizations, who are fully responsible for the statements made by their exhibits. The Kansas City, Kansas Public Library does not necessarily endorse these exhibits as representative of the historical record or of the materials in the Kansas Collection.

Transcriptions are presented without changes except to improve readability. The Kansas City, Kansas Public Library is not responsible for the accuracy, reliability or completeness of any data in any article contributed by individual authors. The article is a reflection of the author's research at the time it was written. The content of the article is the responsibility of the individual author.

Credits and Citing this Website

To cite this Website, use the author's name, title of the Webpage, its URL, and the date you accessed the site, as follows:

Landis, Margaret. The Windows at City Hall <http://www.kckpl.lib.ks.us/kscoll/twach/twach.htm>, April, 1998.

U.S. Copyright Law: Fair Use

Fair use permits reproduction of single copies of many protected documents for individual and private use. In most cases, fair use is applied to documents protected by intellectual property and literary rights. For more information, read Flyer 102 from the United States Copyright Office at the Library of Congress.